As part of the best practices upheld by Naipunnya School of Management, the Department of Computer Science and Applications, in collaboration with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), hosted a highly informative and engaging workshop for second year and final-year computer science students. The event took place on the 12th of October 2023, at LCD Room 2, and was scheduled from 9:30 AM to 11:30 AM.

The program commenced with a solemn prayer, setting a reflective tone for the event. Arathy R Nair, a second-year BCA student, took the stage to offer a warm and welcoming speech. Her words resonated with the essence of the gathering, extending a heartfelt greeting to all the participants. The introductory address and inauguration of the workshop was delivered by the Head of the Department of Computer Science and Applications.

At 9:45 AM, the spotlight shifted to the main segment of the event - the hardware workshop, which was conducted by the experienced and knowledgeable resource person, Mr. Suresh Babu. The workshop was meticulously organized into three batches to ensure effective engagement and personalized learning experiences for all the participants.

Suresh Babu's expertise in the field of hardware and computer science became evident as he delved into various aspects of hardware components, configurations, and troubleshooting. The workshop covered topics such as the anatomy of a computer, identifying and installing hardware components, and addressing common hardware issues. Mr. Suresh Babu's hands-on approach made complex concepts accessible to the students, allowing them to gain a deeper understanding of the subject matter. The impact of the workshop was immediately apparent through the positive feedback from the participating students. The session not only enhanced their knowledge of computer hardware but also improved their problem-solving skills in this domain. The interactive nature of the workshop enabled students to ask questions, seek clarification, and engage in practical exercises, which significantly contributed to their learning experience.

The event concluded at 11:30 AM, leaving the students with newfound insights and knowledge about computer hardware. The workshop not only augmented their academic understanding but also provided them with practical skills that will be invaluable as they progress in their academic and professional journeys. The success of this workshop can be attributed to the meticulous planning by the Department of Computer Science and Applications and the invaluable support of the Internal Quality Assurance Cell. It exemplifies Naipunnya School of Management's commitment to providing holistic education and enhancing the learning experiences of its students.

In conclusion, the workshop held on the 12th of October 2023 was a significant milestone in the academic journey of the computer science students at Naipunnya School of Management. It not only enriched their understanding of computer hardware but also served as a testament to the institution's dedication to best practices and the overall development of its students. On November 1st 2023, the Department of Computer Science and Application, in association with the Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC), organized a program titled "Training on Python Django" for final year BCA and BSC Computer Science students under the best practice "Naipunnyaam." This program aimed to provide students with hands-on experience in HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and Python Django, culminating in the development of a "Todo App." The program was attended by thirty students from the final year BCA and BSC Computer Science batch and proved to be highly effective.

The program commenced at 10:00 am and spanned the entire day. It included various sessions and activities to equip the students with essential skills in web development using Python Django.

The Program Coordinator, Ms. Kavitha Santhosh, initiated the event with a warm welcome speech, setting the tone for the day's activities and expressing the department's commitment to providing students with practical knowledge and skills.

Mr. Vinod Chandran, the Head of Department of Computer Science and Application, inaugurated the function. His opening remarks highlighted the significance of such training programs in bridging the gap between academia and industry. He emphasized the importance of Python Django in modern web development and encouraged students to make the most of this opportunity.

The training sessions focused on a structured curriculum that covered HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and Python Django. Students were introduced to the fundamentals of web development, front-end and back-end technologies, and the integration of Python Django for creating dynamic web applications.

One of the program's highlights was the practical aspect, where students were actively engaged in developing a "Todo App." This hands-on approach allowed them to apply the knowledge they had gained throughout the day. They learned to create a web application, design user interfaces, and implement functionality using Python Django.

The students found the training to be highly effective, as it bridged the gap between theory and practice. They appreciated the opportunity to work on a real project, as it enhanced their problem-solving and coding skills. The feedback received was overwhelmingly positive, with many students expressing their gratitude for the practical exposure.

Cibin Vincent, a student from S5 BCA, delivered the vote of thanks at the end of the program. He expressed the students' gratitude to Principal, HOD, faculties, and the Program Coordinators for organizing such a valuable training program. Cibin also thanked the IQAC for its support in making the event a success.

The "Training on Python Django" program for final year BCA and BSC Computer Science students, organized under the best practice "Naipunnya," was a resounding success. The thirty students who attended gained essential skills in web development and had the opportunity to apply their knowledge by creating a "Todo App" using Python Django. The feedback from the students was overwhelmingly positive, indicating the effectiveness of the program. Such initiatives play a vital role in equipping students with practical skills and preparing them for the challenges of the modern job market.

This program also exemplified the commitment of the Department of Computer Science and Application to providing high-quality education and bridging the gap between academia and industry, further fostering a culture of excellence among students.

Training session for students can motivate them to be hardworking and pursue their goals with passion. In-house training series for college students by industrial experts typically refers to a program where professionals from various industries are invited to conduct specialized training sessions within the college premises. These training sessions aim to provide students with real-world insights, practical knowledge, and skills that are directly applicable to their future careers. The industrial experts are usually individuals with extensive experience and expertise in specific fields, bringing a practical and industry-relevant perspective to the students.

Here are some key features and objectives of in-house training series for college students:

Industry-Relevant Content: The training series focuses on topics and skills that are directly relevant to the industry, giving students a better understanding of the practical aspects of their chosen field.

Hands-on Workshops: Practical workshops and hands-on activities may be included to allow students to apply theoretical knowledge in a real-world context. This can enhance their problem-solving skills and give them a taste of the challenges they may encounter in their careers.

Networking Opportunities: Students have the chance to interact with and learn from professionals currently working in the industry. This networking opportunity can be valuable for future internships, job placements, and mentorship.

Career Guidance: Industrial experts may offer insights into career paths, industry trends, and the skills that are in high demand. This guidance can help students make informed decisions about their career trajectories.

Q&A Sessions: Interactive question-and-answer sessions allow students to engage directly with the experts, seeking clarification on concepts, asking about industry practices, and gaining deeper insights into the professional world.

Skill Enhancement: The training series aims to enhance students' skill sets, making them more competitive in the job market. This may include both technical skills and soft skills such as communication, teamwork, and problem-solving.

Certificates of Completion: Participants may receive certificates of completion, which can be added to their resumes and portfolios, showcasing their commitment to ongoing learning and professional development.

In-house training series provide a bridge between academic knowledge and real-world application, helping students transition smoothly from college to the professional environment. These programs are often organized in collaboration with industry partners, ensuring that the content remains relevant and up-to-date with current industry standards and practices.
